THE COUNTY INSTITUTE IN SESSION

Teachers Are Attending To
The Number of One Hundred.

LECTURE FOR TO-NIGHT.

Exercises To-day Will Be Appropriate To the Natal
Day.

The city is full of pedagogues. The occasion is the opening of the Christian County Teachers' Institute, under the management of the county superintendent, Miss Katie McDaniel. The meetings will continue through the week up to and including Friday afternoon.

The institute was called to order yesterday morning and after organization the teachers present enrolled their names. This will, perhaps, be the fullest attendance in the history of the institute.

It is estimated that over one hundred teachers will attend the sessions of the institute.

Yesterday morning the county superintendent made a few general remarks, which were full of logic and instruction to all in attendance, showing Miss McDaniel's peculiar fitness for the position which she has filled so admirably for the past twelve years.

She was followed by an introductory address by the instructor of the institute, Dr. R. N. Roark.

The exercises of the afternoon consisted of a symposium on school management, led by the instructor, and a discussion of the normal school question in Kentucky.

This morning will be recognized as a national day. The court room will be decorated with the national colors, patriotic songs will be sung, and the 4th otherwise observed.

The court room will be packed to-night to hear Dr. Roark's great address, entitled "Face to Face with Here and Now." All who fail to hear this will miss one of the best addresses ever delivered in the city. The full program of the institute will be found elsewhere in this paper.

BATTLE WITH BULL.

Infuriated Animal Was Finally Shot Dead.

Alf Gant, colored, of Gainesville, was attacked by a bull yesterday and had a narrow escape from death. The animal hurled Gant into the air and when he fell to the ground the attack was renewed. The negro finally succeeded in getting the bull by the horns, and, holding on with one hand, he shot the animal dead. Gant sustained some very bad bruises.

SECRETARY JOHN HAY PASSES AWAY.

Unexpected End of His Physical Break-Down.

FUNERAL TO-MORROW.

Was America's Foremost
Diplomat and a Man of Ability and Culture.

Newbury, N. H., July 1.—The body of Secretary of State John Hay, whose unexpected death early today has caused sorrow through the land and evoked expressions of sympathy and regret the world over, will be interred in Washington Wednesday.

Just one week ago to-night the Secretary arrived at this village from Washington, wearied with the cares of State and anticipating a long summer's rest. Tonight the same launch in which Mr. Hay made the short trip from Newbury conveyed relatives of Mrs. Hay to the cottage where they brought sympathy and help to the stricken woman and her only son. In that week came first the news that the Secretary had been seized with a sudden and alarming attack calling for expert medical treatment, then that he had passed through the early stages of recovery and had reached a condition promising in every respect ultimate recovery. Then the crushing blow fell.

Death was caused by pulmonary embolism, according to Dr. Scudder. The patient did not suffer greatly in his last moments. Aside from great difficulty in breathing there was no struggle. Stimulants were ineffective. The Secretary lapsed into unconsciousness and seemed to fall asleep at last.

Born in Indiana.

John Hay was born in Salem, Ind., October 8, 1838. He was graduated from Brown university and settled in Illinois as a lawyer, but has been in political life since the outbreak of the war between the states. In 1861 he went to Washington as one of President Lincoln's private secretaries, acting also as his aide-de-camp. He served under Generals Hunter and Gilmore with the rank of major and adjutant general. He

MERIWETHER

Withdrew His Appeal and Will be Taken to Eddy-ville at Once.

Frank Meriwether, one of the negroes convicted of complicity in the Pembroke murder and given a life sentence at the spring term of court, withdrew his appeal and he will be taken to Eddyville either today or to-morrow to begin his term.

Dave Cunningham, col., who was also convicted last spring on a charge of grand larceny, but granted an appeal, failed to get the matter before the court within the time limit, and he, too, will be taken to Eddyville with Meriwether.

In the case in the Circuit Court of Spiegel Bourland by next friend against Dr. Walter Lackey for assault, in which the jury returned a verdict for $500.00, the court granted a new trial. Bourland was at the time of the assault confined at the Western Asylum as a lunatic, and the defendant, Dr. Lackey was the First Assistant physician of that institution.

The motion for a new trial was vigorously argued and the Court was asked to give a reason if he had any for a new trial.

His opinion sustaining the motion was substantially as follows: "While I can't lay my hand on any particular reason for granting a new trial, it kinder runs in my mind that this verdict is wrong and I grant a new trial."

The appeal case of T. J. Guthrie against the city of Hopkinsville for amount of salary which plaintiff claimed to have lost on account of being quarantined during the small-pox epidemic, was decided in favor of plaintiff, and the latter was given a judgement for $24.

The motion for a new trial in the Annie May Brasher case in which she got a verdict for $300 against the Tennessee Central was overruled also the motion for a new hearing in the case of Brown against the Forbes Manufacturing Company in which there was a verdict for the defendant was also overruled.

Jim Holloway, who was convicted of manslaughter, in the killing of Andrew Bradshaw, another negro, near old Bellevue, about twenty-five years ago, and given eight years, was refused a new trial and the case will go to the court of appeals.

The following divorce suits were granted: Emma Wilson from Abner W. Wilson, A. Thomas Wiley from Hattie Wiley.

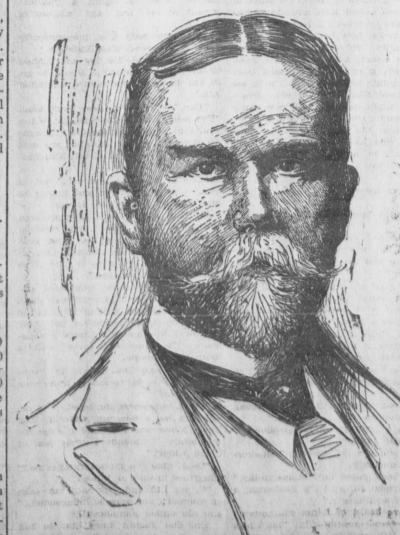

The case of W. H. Bickers against The Anchor Fire Insurance Company was dismissed, settled.

Sunday School Picnic.

The Baptist Sunday school will have a picnic next Friday, in Carroll's woods near the city, on the Clarksville pike.

Mrs. J. S. Brown and children, of Nashville, are visiting Mrs. C. F. Jarrett, on East Seventh street.

THE INVENTOR OF INDEPENDENCE DAY CELEBRATIONS

"I am apt to believe that it will be celebrated by succeeding generations as the great Anniversary Festival. It ought to be commemorated, as the day of deliverance, by solemn acts of devotion to God Almighty. It ought to be solemnized with pomp, shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires and illuminations from one end of the continent to the other from this time forward forever."

President John Adams.

John Adams Foretold Our Noisy Celebrations

JOHN ADAMS, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, and second president of the United States, was the staunch friend of the American boy. Not only did he believe it to be every boy's inalienable right, but his patriotic duty to burn his fingers with gunpowder and to deafen the populace with noises of all descriptions on the nation's natal day. That such was his belief is proven by the above extract from a letter written by him to his wife from Philadelphia on July 3, 1776, 24 hours before old Liberty Bell had proclaimed to an expectant nation that its representatives had thrown off the yoke of the tyrannical George III.

Thus it is that President Adams is the inventor of Independence day celebrations. Thus it is that the American boy has his first and most prominent authority for his hilarious observance of this, the greatest day in our history. President Adams was a comparatively young man when he wrote this letter, being then but 41 years of age. He lived to be more than 90, and before his death saw this great day celebrated as he wished it celebrated over practically all of the civilized portion of the continent south of the Canadian line. His death occurred on July 4, 1826, and on the same day, and at almost the same hour, there died also Thomas Jefferson, a colleague of Adams on the committee which drafted the famous document declaring American Independence.

Ben Easton's Fourth

By MANDA L. CROCKER

He stepped lightly into the two-seater canopy-top, and, flicking a bit of dust from his sleeve, took up the ribbons with a lordly hand. "I'll show Miss Millie a trick!" it seemed there was more emphasis than was necessary. "I'll show her that it is Independence day in more ways than one!"

This outburst, which did not augur well for Ben Easton's "Fourth," was but a continuation of yesterday's chatter, and he doubted not but that it would be a serious affair at the finish. However, he meant to maintain his dignity to the end, now that he had begun.

"Yes," he had begun, "but he had 'just cause and provocation,' as old Squire Prebles would quote, and so he chirruped to the real boys triumphantly. He had meant to take the new turn-out and Millicent Radcliffe to the Pent-water picnic; but the former was shut up hearse-like in the carriage house,

"I AM AWFULLY BORRY, BEN."

while the latter—Well, he had heard—he could not tell for his life how or where—that Millicent intended making a new deal, as to escorts, and had her eye on Jack Kennedy. With this exasperating gossip in mind he had called on Millie the evening before. He had found her under the cherry tree by the front gate, looking as innocent as a Madonna while she gathered the crimson fruit. He thought she grew a trifle nervous as he plumped himself into the rustic seat and said:

"I presume you are all ready for the show to-morrow."

"I am awfully sorry, Ben," she began, "but I cannot go."

"Why?" he exclaimed fiercely. He was expecting this, and was prepared.

"Oh," she answered, "then you haven't heard that Aunt Minerva—"

"No! I haven't heard, neither have you!" he almost shouted; for, although Millie's old aunt was by no means of a haughty, he was not going to have her snubbed at her feet.

"It's no fault of Minerva Radcliffe's if you've failed me at the last minute for that upstart of a Kennedy; of course not!"

Flushed and irate he then swept down the summer lane, leaving Millie no chance of explanation.

"Like a cyclone," she said, but her eyes were full of pain and astonishment, while the cherries dropped unheeded at her feet.

It was not pleasant to remember it now; but he had begun the trouble and he meant to see the end.

at the Hilton gate he reined in the horses and called out to Tom on the front lawn: "Anybody here who wants to go to the picnic?"

"Why, yes, you are a godsend, true as I live," cried Tom, springing to his feet. "The girls want to go awfully bad, and I wouldn't mind an invitation, too, if there's room."

All right," smiled Ben. "I am at your service."

Right in the middle of a dissertation on the old-fashioned "Fourth," Jack Kennedy passed them. He lifted his cap to the Misses Hilton and bowed to Ben as he went by. But Grace Phillips was with him!

"Why—I thought—" and Rose Hilton's partner on the front seat was so astonished that he did not finish the sentence.

"You did not expect to see them to-day," said she, adding toward the Kennedy turnout. "O, yes; they made up weeks ago and are to be married in September," and she smiled, amused at Ben Easton's surprised expression.

"I didn't know," stammered he, finally, looking straight over the horses' heads and feeling that the earth must be spinning a good bit faster than usual.

"Well, I know," rejoined Rose. "I have a part in the festivities. But, my! don't look as if you had seen a ghost, Mr. Easton; it is no uncommon thing for lovers to quarrel before marriage, rest assured he will after, and I'd as lief live with a Hottentot as a jealous husband."

Miss Hilton made a telling shot, but Ben covered up his wound and made no sign. He was wondering if his independence was not on the wane some where. He wished he knew what Millie was doing; and he tried to imagine, as Miss Hilton preferred a Hottentot to one like himself, what Millie's opinion could be by this time. He was afraid the trick he meant to show her was only a mean, sneaky one, after all.

Along in the afternoon the Hiltons had excused him again and gone for a row on the water; and while he sat disconsolate and lone he saw Millie drive on to the grounds in the Hilton phaeton. The horses looked jaded and she seemed weary and troubled. If he had not been such a brute, how he would now try to her comfort. But a boy took the horses and she sought a seat under the trees.

"She ought to go to her," he said, looking longingly her way, "but I'm to see this cursed blunder to the end. Heaven! I might as well end it now, while these confounded Hiltons are not by."

He came and stood before her penitently. She looked up. "I have been a brute," he said; "have suffered all day, too, for it. Will you forgive me, Millie?"

"I have been sorry all day, too," she said. "But you haven't done anything," he replied.

She looked reproachfully and said: "Shall I tell you why I could not come with you this morning; would you believe me?"

"You need not explain; it is all right and you would not do wrong, Millie," he spoke with eager assurance, and she smiled a little.

"Your faith in me is like a mushroom, grew in a night," she said, and may perish in a day."

"Millie," said he, desperately, "I'll go and make myself if I am a fool of me!"

"Not on the Fourth," she objected. "Independence day, you know."

"It is a travesty on independence!" he almost growled.

"No, you are the travesty," she corrected, smilingly.

"I've been called hard names to-day," he returned bitterly, "a Hottentot, a toy and a—travesty."

"I have heard of triple characters," she answered, smiling icily; "but where are the Hiltons' looking out over the water. 'They came with you,'

"Did they?" he queried.

"Yes," I lived in the Hilton parlor when you invited them."

"Yes; I went over to get the basket phaeon, as auntie could ride best in that. I drove to Fairview to-day," she ended, sadly.

"Millie," cried Ben, "are you too disgusted with me to take me back?"

"Back home? O, no, I planned as much with the Hiltons this morning."

Tom will drive the canopy-top and you will go with me in the phaeton."

"Then the Hiltons know everything?" he looked at her in humiliation.

"They know why I could not come with you this morning," she said, evasively.

Ben sat down on the extreme end of the seat and wished he knew as much as the Hiltons, just then. But he would the cheerful to show her was only a mean, sneaky one, after all.

"At this juncture the trio came up bedraggled and happy, carrying immense wreaths of water lilies, and were ready to go home."

"It has been such a jolly day!" exclaimed Rose, strutting a fragrant wreath on her arm and addressing Millie.

"Yes; everybody is so independently happy," answered Miss Radcliffe.

Ben Easton bit his lips and flushed to the roots of his hair. "Would he get to the finish of this before it finished him?"

"Fret," echoed Tom over Ben's head. "I've been having a fine time, too. When your aunt wanted the phaeton I thought we were done for; but when you sent Ben around, you let us all out, Miss Radcliffe."

"There's always a way out," put in Ben, catching at straws and hoping he was the son of a prophet at least.

But his remark must have sounded extremely funny, for it was received with a storm of applause. Tom went so far as to roll on the sword in his meritment, asking the girls to give three cheers for "the way out."

When the shadows lengthened and everybody was getting everybody else's dinner basket, the Hiltons filled the canopy-top with themselves and their burden of lilies and rolled merrily homeward. The phaeton followed with a more sedate couple.

"Millie," said Ben, by and by, "were you sorrowing so because I broke your heart, dear?"

"O, no," answered she, quietly. "Aunt Minerva had a telegram yesterday that Uncle Abner was dead, and to come immediately. I thought a great deal of Uncle Abner!"

"O, then you did not think of me?" he chagrined in spite of himself.

"O, no; I thought you could take care of yourself; you were so independent," and she smiled complacently.

And Ben Easton knew that he had come clump up against "the finish," and had missed his dignity.

A Fourth of July Change of Heart

By BERTHA E. RUSH

ADORABLE children," said Miss Dairymple. "They are perfectly fascinating to me. I'd like nothing better than to have a child with me all the time."

She looked so pretty when she said it that I longed to fall on my knees before her. Miss Dairymple was the idol of my heart, but I was not happy, even in her society, for I had a rival. My rival was a little child, a three-year-old child. As I saw the look of satisfaction that spread over her face at this remark, I ground my teeth. Why should she have such advantage over me? I turned aside lest he should see my disturbance and in doing so I happened to glance at Miss Dean.

Miss Dean is Miss Dairymple's cousin, who is taking a rest after the ardors of a three-years' training as a goddess! What a howl! Who would have thought that such a noise could ever have proceeded from the mouth of so little a child! I shook her. She howled louder. Never was a young lady in a more conspicuous and embarrassing position.

"Let me take her. I'll soon quiet her," said Miss Dean, and her voice was positively sweet at that moment. The sweetest sound I had ever heard.

I don't know what magic she used, but little Alice was soon sitting smiling and happy beside her and I was enjoying bliss by the side of my charmer. But somehow the bliss was a shade less blissful than before, and the low sweet voice that spoke to the child was heard through it all.

We had no more trouble with little Alice while Miss Dean was with us. Indeed, beyond the purchase of a package of candy and a toy balloon for her, I scarcely thought of the child. But in another hour Miss Dean went away on errand, and then my trials began. I had looked forward to this season with my beloved with only the unconscious child as a witness ever since the expedition was planned.

Had thought that at last I would find an opportunity to offer her my heart and hand. But had sweet baby Alice been a malignant demon, she could not have interfered more with my purpose. In five minutes after Miss Dean had left, she had streaked her white dress with dust and candy juice from top to bottom. Her face was worse than her dress and her hands were worse than either. Yet she insisted on eating Miss Dairymple's dainty lavender gown and my once immaculate skirt-front with them incessantly.

What that baby's face with my best hand-worked handkerchief ten times in the next hour, with no permanent effect save that the contrast between it and her dirty frock grew more pronounced. At last, in sheer despair, I decided to let her go. Charging her strictly not to go out of sight, I vowed to devote to Miss Dairymple the few minutes before Miss Dean's return. In three minutes I had forgotten everything else.

A puff! A bang! A shriek! People were running toward a corner of the park. There had been an explosion of a toy cannon. Where was Baby Alice? I searched frantically here, there and everywhere. No sign of her, although the murmur of "A baby hurt!" filled me with dismay.

At last I found her and she was the victim. She was in a policeman's arms.

A puff! A bang! A shriek! People were running toward a corner of the park. There had been an explosion of a toy cannon. Where was Baby Alice? I searched frantically here, there and everywhere. No sign of her, although the murmur of "A baby hurt!" filled me with dismay.

At last I found her and she was the victim. She was in a policeman's arms.

I washed that baby's face with my best hand-worked handkerchief ten times in the next hour, with no permanent effect save that the contrast between it and her dirty frock grew more pronounced. At last, in sheer despair, I decided to let her go. Charging her strictly not to go out of sight, I vowed to devote to Miss Dairymple the few minutes before Miss Dean's return. In three minutes I had forgotten everything else.

Our Declarations

8 times passes critics and causers of the bit of literature sacred to the good American, call the document "Declaration of Independence" in origin the people's simplicity. Englishmen speak of it as a very one-sided article, and this last is most amusing of all the analyses of blame that has befallen the words signed that July day some 129 years ago; conditions were not such ones as could be much amended, an impossible judgment of a careful student, a man that, from the distance of years, is able to judge calmly and fairly.

Prof. Moses Colt Taylor, meeting the charge of lack of originality, says that of course the document was a revelation to his country. The philosophy for the preceding 13 years, during which period the colonies were hitherto with the injustice and indifference of the mother country. The philosophy thus characteristic of it (the declaration) is the very philosophy of the champions of constitutional expansion.

of elvish dignity and progress within the English race ever since Magna Charta.

Prof. Taylor goes on to say: "If the Declaration of Independence is now to be fairly judged by us, it must be judged with reference to what it was intended to be—namely, an impassioned manifesto of one party, and that the weaker party, in violent reaction, of

TURKEY IS VERY BACKWARD

Electricity Has Not Been Welcomed in the Sultan's Domain. No Telephones.

Among other curious features which make Turkey an anomaly in Europe and among modern governments is the fact against electricity in the dominions of the sultan. There are no electric lights, yet there are gas plants; there are no telephones, yet the Turks utilize the telegraph; and the first electric railway is to be built, although steam roads are no longer a novelty. It will not be long, however, before this barrier to progress will be removed, for, according to United States Consul Ravada, plans for an electric railway and for electric lighting at Damascus are under serious consideration. That such a project should be taken up in this, the oldest surviving city in history, indicates that Turkey is about to keep step, in this respect, at least, with the modern world. High government officials are interested in the Damascus lighting undertaking, for which $200,000 is to be raised. Ahmed Izzet Pasha, second secretary to the sultan, and his brother, Mustafa Bey, have both promised to take stock, as has also the council of the province. If this should prove the entering wedge which it seems, there is ahead for the immediate attention of American electrical engineers, manufacturers and promoters.

WOMAN'S WOES.

Hopkinsville Women Are Finding Relief at Home.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing down pains; they must stoop over, when to stoop over means torture. They must walk and bend and walk with aching pains, and many aches from kidney ills. Kidneys cause more suffering than any other organ of the body. Keep the kidneys well and health is easily maintained. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that helps and cures the kidneys and is endorsed by people you know.

Mrs. John Coombs, of 1226 South Virginia street, says: "For a great many years I suffered with a persistent aching across my loins and through the kidneys. At times my back was so bad that I could hardly turn in bed and I could hardly lie on my back at all without placing my hand under it which seemed in some measure to relieve the pain. A friend of Mr. Coombs told him about Doan's Kidney Pills and he got a box for me at Thomas & Trahern's drug store. On using them I steadily improved until the dreadful aching was relieved and I could attend to my household duties without any inconvenience. They did more for me than any medicine I ever used and I gladly recommend them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

State College of Kentucky, Lexington, Ky.

The Agricultural and Mechanical (State College) of Kentucky offers the following courses of study, viz: Agricultural, Horticultural, Chemical, Biological, Mathematical, Physical, Normal School, Classical, Mechanical Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Civil Engineering, and Mining Engineering, each of which extends over four years and leads to a degree. Post graduate studies are also provided, leading to a master's degree. Each course of study is organized under a separate faculty. The general faculty number nearly fifty professors and instructors.

County appointees receive free tuition, room rent in the dormitories, fuel and light, and if they remain ten months, traveling expenses.

The laboratories and museums are large, well equipped, comprehensive and modern.

The Legislature appropriated $60,000 for a college home for young women and $30,000 for drill hall and gymnasium for men. Both buildings are completed and in use. Military tactics and science are fully provided for as required by Congress.

Graduates from the several courses of study readily find excellent positions and liberal remuneration. The demand is largely in excess of the ability of the College to supply.

Specialists with the necessary number of assistants have charge of each department of natural science. Summer schools are provided for pedagogy, engineering, instruction in science and in arts.

The State College of Kentucky, though bearing hitherto the title of "college," is the only institution in the Commonwealth doing, in any proper sense, university work.

The completion of the College home for young women provides facilities for good board and lodging. It is equipped with all modern conveniences, including bath rooms and room for physical culture. It is heated by steam and lighted by electricity.

An opportunity is thus afforded to young women of obtaining a thorough education in classics, modern language, literature, science, mathematics, logic, metaphysics, history, and political economy.

No other institution in the State offers advantages for education of women at all comparable to those offered by the State College of Kentucky.

For catalogues, method of obtaining appointments, information regarding courses of study, and terms of admission, apply to JAS. K. PATTERSON, Ph. D., LL. D. or to D. C. FRAZEE, Business Agent, Lexington, Ky.

Washington, D. C., July 3.—For Kentucky: Showers and local thunder storms. Cooler in Central and Eastern portion.

A telephone has been installed in the middle of Salt Lake 3,000 feet from the shore, for the use of bathers, who can talk to their friends 600 miles away.

Jno. D. Rockefeller, who gave $1,000,000 to Yale College last week, has announced that he will give $10,000,000 more for the endowment of higher education in the United States.

Judge J. Sherman Cooper has resigned as county Judge of Pulaski to become Revenue Collector at Danville and Gov. Beckham has appointed Hon. Ben V. Smith to fill the vacancy.

The negro revenue collector at New York, Charles Anderson, has appointed a young white woman as his private secretary. This ought to satisfy the great equalizer who appointed him.

Thos. D. Underwood, the county attorney of Barron county, who ran away to escape prosecution for selling whiskey in a prohibition county, has been arrested at Springfield, I. T., and will be brought back for trial.

The railroads have quit extending courtesies to Congressmen who voted for the anti-railroad bill and several of them have been horrified to be informed that they will have to use their mileage to buy transportation in lieu of free passes.

John F. Stevens, recently first vice president of the Rock Island railroad, has been appointed successor to John F. Wallace, as chief engineer of the Panama Canal. His salary will be $30,000. He is now chief engineer of railroad construction in the Philippines.

A Durr, of New Rochelle, N. Y., has two hearts and has offered to sell his body for dissection, to the highest bidder. He will give the purchaser a deed good after his death. He is 35 years old now and in perfect health. The proposition requires a considerable amount of future speculation.

The Federal grand jury at Chicago is after the Beef trust in vigorous style. After an exhaustive inquiry, indictments have been returned against seventeen prominent of ficers and employees of the various packing houses, including Armour & Co., Swift & Co., Nelson, Morris & Co., the Cudahy Packing Co., and The Fairbanks Canning Co. In each case the bond has been fixed at $50,000, and the trials will not come up until some time in the fall.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

It is highly important that these organs should properly perform their functions. The great literature and tonic

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Gives these organs vigor and tone for the proper performance of their functions, and cures all their ordinary ailments. Take it.

The hullabaloo raised by secretary Taft because Engineer J. F. Wallace preferred a $50,000 position in New York to a $25,000 government position in Panama, has its ridiculous features. The President has but recently legislated out of office an entire commission at Panama and has the right under the special act to fire any and all of the present commissioners at his own sweet will. Then why should not an official who is tired of an unpleasant job in a deadly climate be allowed to give it up? Are we to have penance in Panama?

Editor Louis Brownlow, of the Paducah News-Democrat, was forcibly ejected from the police station by Capt. Joe Woods, Saturday. Woods refused to give his reporters information about an arrest and when Brownlow went in person he was pushed out of the door. The News-Democrat has recently been writing up the police pretty vigorously and this is supposed to have caused the assault. In Sunday's paper Brownlow denounced Woods as a coward and demanded that he be removed from office.

Both Blackburn and Paynter are claiming W. W. Tabb, nominee for senator in the Elizabethtown district, and the Blackburn men are also claiming Wheeler Campbell, in the Paducah district, who was a leader of the administration forces in the last Senate. Somebody's wires are evidently crossed or there has been a deal of shifting in both of these cases.

Old Dr. Tanner, of fasting fame, who went without food for 40 days twenty years ago, is to be regularly buried for thirty days to prove that the earth generates a form of energy, which he calls radio-active, sufficient to keep him alive. Tanner is 75 years old and declared to be hale and hearty. He is now in California.

Secretary Taft and party, which includes Miss Alice Roosevelt, left Washington Friday on their journey to the Philippines. They will sail from San Francisco this week and be absent three months. Upon his return Secretary Taft will probably become Secretary of State.

Coming Sure, Coming Soon!

Do not fail to attend the big novelty Auction Sale of Town Lots, on Tuesday, July 11th, at 9:30 a. m., McPherson, Fowler and Hanbery addition to the city of Hopkinsville.

A rare opportunity for an investment that will yield a handsome profit or a desirable spot on which to build an ideal home.

The Fitz-Simmons Auction company are flying higher than a cat's back in this particular line, and the writer is busier than a bee in a tar bucket with both wings crossed, getting ready for this great, grand and glorious event.

I especially desire and hereby extend a cordial invitation to the ladies to attend this greatest of all auction sales. Yes, the ladies, God bless them with all their frills and flounces, short-comings and false fixings, we love them still—and the stiller the better. Come and bring the children, for the Bible says "of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

And to the men I would say, come, and stand not on the order of your coming, "for verily, verily, I say unto you; what will it profit a man if he gain the whole world" and hasn't a cozy little wife, and a cozy little home, in a cozy little neighborhood, on this cozy little addition, to this cozy little city.

Now is the accepted time" for after the sale it will be too late.

Listen: "To the hen said Henry Ward Beecher. "You are a beautiful creature," The hen just for that Laid an egg in his hat, Thus did the hen reward Beecher."

Come and get your reward.

Remember, we sell a lot every minute, and keep you laughing all the time we are doing it, and with our attractions: Marriage ceremony, with 50 to the lucky couple; the pretty baby contest, with $10, $5 and $2.50 to the three finest looking babies between the ages of six and eighteen months. The three cash prizes of $12.50, $7.50 and $5.00, a chance absolutely free to every man, woman, boy and girl on the ground.

The old men's foot race, open to all residents of Christian county, must be over fifty years of age. A fifty yard dash, not less than ten entries—three prizes of $10, $5 and $2.50, to the three sprightliest, speediest sprinters, awarded by judges selected by the audience.

Band concert, both in the city and on the grounds.

Free carriages in gala parade will leave the courthouse at 9:20 a. m., and the sale will begin at 9:30 a. m.

With all our attractions, backed up by the funniest auctioneer on the road, you will, figuratively, float on a gigantic jag of jubilation joy from start to finish. Do not fail to attend.
